DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 2 June 2009 has been entered.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed 2 June 2009 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

3. In response to the applicant's argument that Driskell fails to disclose curved or linear boundary lines of design patterns, it is noted that while the claims are considered in light of the present specification, they are still given their broadest reasonable interpretation. The present specification does not explicitly define the term "boundary line" as being the line between two areas of different colors on the diaper. Therefore, the term will be given its broadest reasonable interpretation (i.e. a line that provides a boundary or border). Since the curved lines printed on the diapers of Driskell border the area in which the design pattern is printed, as shown in figure 5, the curved lines form boundary lines.

4. In response to the applicant's argument that the articles of Driskell have only slight variations in design that, when packaged together, become almost the same, it is noted that the degree of difference between the design patterns on the diapers is not claimed. The present invention is drawn to a plurality of diapers packaged together, wherein the diapers each have different designs. The diapers of Driskell have variations in their designs, and therefore when packaged together will fulfill the claimed limitations.

5. It is further noted that the design patterns on the diapers constitute printed matter, and do not provide any new or nonobvious function to the diapers on which they are printed. Therefore, the design patterns do not distinguish the claimed diaper over the prior art, since the diapers of Driskell are otherwise identical in structure to the claimed diaper. (see MPEP 2112.01(III))

6. With respect to the claimed limitations drawn to the method of forming the diaper, it is noted that the claims are drawn to the finished article, not the method of making the article, and therefore the limitations drawn to the process of forming the product are given minimal patentable weight. Driskell discloses the physical limitations of the finished product (i.e. a diaper having a design pattern thereon), and therefore fulfills the claimed limitations.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

7. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

8. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Art Unit: 3761

1. Claims 13-1444 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Driskell et al. (2005/0065489) in view of Bauer et al. (5,934,470).
2. Driskell discloses all aspects of the claimed invention with the exception of the diapers being packaged together. Driskell discloses a disposable diaper, as shown in figure 1, comprising a main body having a topsheet 14, a backsheet 12, and an absorber 16. The backsheet further comprises a waterproof layer, as disclosed in paragraphs [0062-0063]. A plurality of design prints are applied to the outer surface of the backsheet 12, as shown in figure 5A. The design prints have a width that is less than the width of the main body, but greater than 1/3 the width of the main body, as shown in figure 4B and described in paragraphs [0118-0119]. Since the design prints are applied to the outer surface of the diaper, they do not directly touch the body of the wearer. The design print includes a boundary line having a curved pattern and a gathering of graphics of the same configuration, as shown in figure 5A.
9. Bauer teaches the packaging of a plurality of disposable diapers in a single package, as shown in figure 1. It would therefore be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to package the disposable diapers of Driskell in a package, as taught by Bauer, to allow the consumer to purchase a plurality of diapers at a single time.
